RESTRUCTURING THE WORLD ECONOMY

by Joyce Kolko

is an analytically powerful and richly documented account of the current crisis of global capitalism. Joyce Kolko carefully explores what the global capitalist system means today—for the U.S., Japan, and Western Europe, for the Third World, and for the socialist countries. Her analysis moves from changes in banking and the service sector to the new technologies industries; from the arms industry to the new developments in raw materials and agriculture. The dilemmas of world debt, efforts to restructure world trade, and the nature of monetary relations are each carefully examined, as are the consequences for the labour movement throughout the world.
